

English Working Instructions:

Danella Stretching Frame (RAM2)

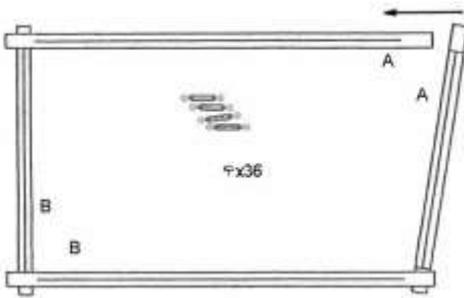

Fig. 1

2. See fig. 2: Place the canvas as though you are going to wrap the frame with it. First, tack the upper and lower parts of the frame. The tacks are shaped like screws; therefore, it is easier to insert them like screws. Repeat and tack the pins in the other direction to tack right and left sides of the frame.

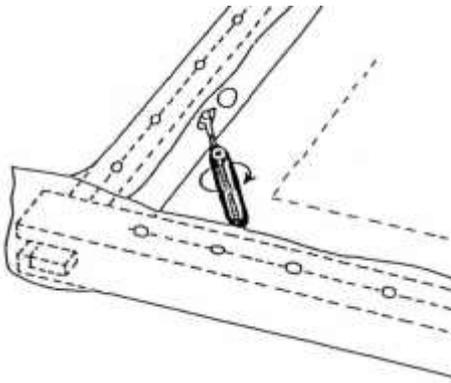

Fig. 3

4. See fig. 4: You can place the frame on your lap and the other side can rest on the edge of a table. If you would like a stand to carry the frame on you can purchase the Danella Stand (STA1), but you can also make one yourself. See DIY Stand Drawings: Danella Rug Hooking by Lena Dyrdal Andersen

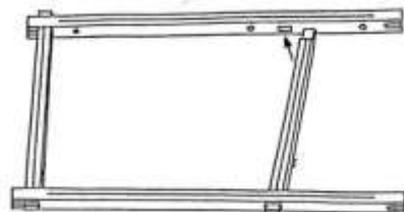

Fig. 5

1. See fig. 1: The stretching frame consists of four frame pieces with dovetail hinges at the ends, 4 turnbuckles and 36 pins.
Place the canvas face up and then place a frame in the center. Each of the 4 frame pieces has one side with a groove and another side with holes. Make sure to place them with the groove sides up with the holes facing inward.

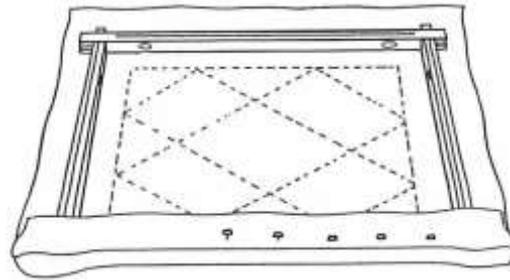

Fig. 2

3. See fig. 3: When finished tacking all sides of the frame, place a turnbuckle at each corner of the frame. If too tight, stretch the frame out while placing the turnbuckles. Rotating the center part of the turnbuckles will make the frame larger. The canvas will then be taut on the frame. It is a good idea to rotate each of the turnbuckles the same number of times. If the canvas becomes loose while hooking, tighten the canvas by rotating the turnbuckles again.

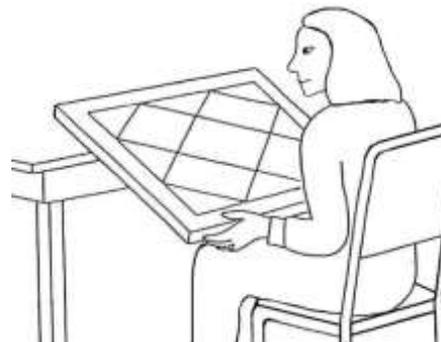

Fig. 4

5. See fig 5: The picture here shows how to set up a smaller frame for a cushion by inserting shorter pieces into a hole located in the middle of the longer pieces.
